

Study in New York City!

Berkeley College offers short-term courses in addition to full degree programs

Short-term study options at Berkeley College offer international students the opportunity to study in New York City for a limited period of time and without committing to a complete degree program. You'll earn the same credits for each course as all students—and you may be able to.

- Continue on toward a degree, or
- Transfer your credits to another university

Classes are held in the heart of New York City. You will have access to comprehensive support resources and services, including tutoring. You can either choose your courses (based on eligibility) or enroll in these specially selected semester-based options which are offered in three different majors.

Marketing Communications Courses

Digital and Social Media Marketing
Branding
International Marketing
Consumer Behavior
International Business

International Business Courses

International Business
International Management
International Trade and Economic Analysis
International Marketing
Negotiations and Diplomacy

Fashion Merchandising and Management Courses

Fashion Product Knowledge
Textiles
Trend Analysis and Product Development
Introduction to Marketing

Don't miss this great opportunity for an outstanding education at Berkeley College in the heart of New York City!

For more details, including eligibility and admission requirements, tuition, and more, please visit <http://BerkeleyCollege.edu/LP/International> email International@BerkeleyCollege.edu or call 212-687-3730.